Torrance Accent Theatre Presents 'Light Up the Sky'

Theatrical fireworks are in store for the South Bay area when the Torrance Accent Theater opens its new comedy hit, "Light Up the Sky," on July 11. Written by Moss Hart who is known for such smash comedies as "Man Who Came to Dinner" and "You Can't Take It With You," this play is a zany exposure of show people at their funniest.

The ingredients of this rib-tickling pot-pourri consist of an actress who is always "on," her harridan of a mother, a very befuddled Wall street husband, an over-emotional director, a hard-headed Mike Todd type producer, a naive young playwright, and a Shriner's convention all thrown together in one hotel room. What happens when these elements run head-long into one another would light up the sky anywhere.

Charles Gray, who was responsible for the staging of the successful "Stalag 17" at the Torrance Playhouse, has gathered together some of the most talented performers in the entire South Bay area for this production, and the result is the excitement of an old fashioned 4th of July.

Catherine Kellogg, recently seen in the PV Players production of Anastasia, plays the mother of the star; Malcolm Sagenkah, president of Accent Theater, plays the jet-propelled producer; Julie O'Neil, of the PV players, sets off little explosions as the actress.

Patricia Gray, who has appeared many times on the George Gobel show, Colgate Comedy Hour, and other network productions has been im-

Brannen, lately of Manhattan Players "Solid Gold Cadillac" spits fire as the supercharged director; Lee Oberholzer of Stalag 17, is the naive young playwright who gets burned by the rocket's red glare; Warren Lavender, who, as Captain Fiske, recently built "The Tea-house of the August Moon" at the Camino Real theater, appears as the befuddled husband of the star.
